

To allow online verification of eligibility at medical care institutions

Notify your employer of your individual number!

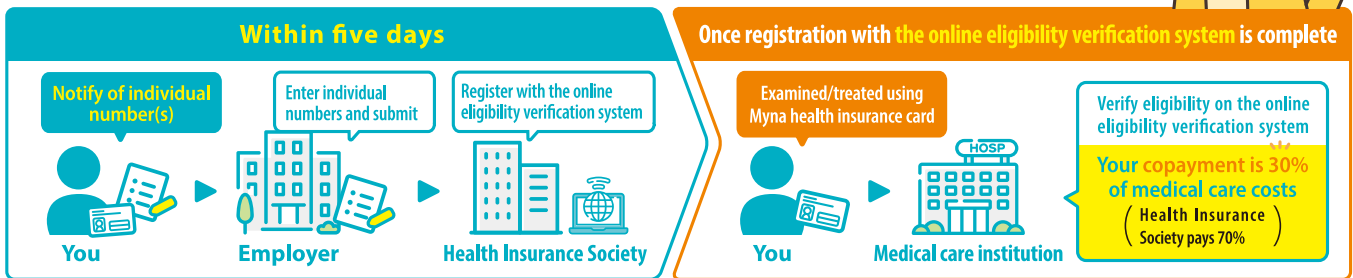

Your individual number is found on the back of your Individual Number Card or My Number ("Myna") Card

Members are legally required to notify their health insurance societies of their individual numbers via their employers.

System for verifying eligibility and related procedures

The Health Insurance Society registers Myna health insurance cards with the online eligibility verification system. Please notify the Health Insurance Society of your individual number and those of your family (dependents) via your company.

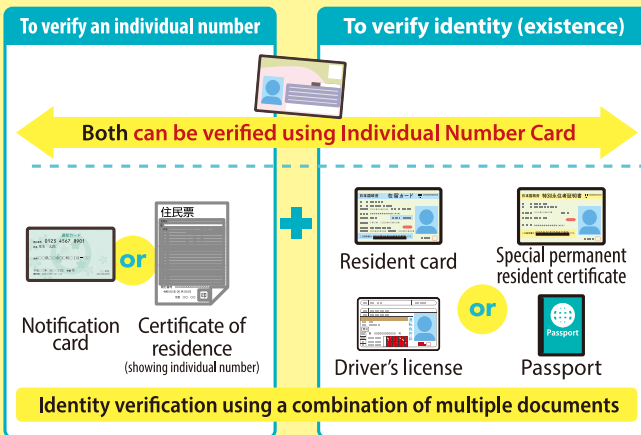

When you notify of your individual number, your employer will verify your individual number and your identity (existence).

By law, when you notify of your individual number, your employer may ask you to submit identification documents to verify your individual number and your identity. If you have an Individual Number Card, it can be used to verify both your individual number and your identity. If you do not have an Individual Number Card, your identity needs to be verified using a combination of multiple documents, as illustrated below.
